This week's conversation might feel like walking a tightrope between awkward laughter and uncomfortable truths—and that's okay. There's so much beauty in talking about love, sex, and romance, especially when we allow laughter and God's Word to shape the conversation.

If our relationship were a romantic comedy, which actor would play each of us?

When it comes to the different types of intimacy (Recreational, Emotional, Spiritual, and Non-Sexual physical touch), where would you like to see me put in more effort?

Our personal homework this week was a little more intense. What did God show you—either in Scripture or about your past—that you think we should process together?

What's one thing I do that always makes you feel desired or wanted?
